SEC. 815. Until administration of the estate has been granted and the inventory filed, the widow and minor children of the deceased are entitled to remain in possession of the homestead, all the wearing apparel of the family, and household furniture of the deceased, and also to have a reasonable provision allowed for their support during such period, to be allowed by the commissioner.

Provision for widow and minor children before administration.

SEC. 816. Upon the filing of the inventory the commissioner shall make an order setting apart for the widow or minor children of the deceased, if any, all the property of the estate by law exempt from execution. The property thus set apart, if there be a widow, is her property, to be used or expended by her in the maintenance of herself and minor children, if any; or if there be no widow, it is the property of the minor child, or if more than one, of the minor children, in equal shares, to be used and expended in the nurture and education of such child or children by the guardian thereof as the law directs.

Property to be set apart, and effect of.

SEC. 817. If the property so exempt is insufficient for the support of the widow and minor children, according to their circumstances and condition in life, for one year after the filing of the inventory, the commissioner may order that the executor or administrator pay to such widow, if any, and if not, then to the guardian of such minor children, an amount sufficient for that purpose.

CHAPTER EIGHTY-FOUR.

OF CLAIMS AGAINST THE ESTATE.

Sec.	Sec.
820. Publication of notice and contents thereof.	825. Judgment against deceased in his lifetime.
821. Proof of publication; effect of not presenting claim.	826. When and how claim may be referred.
822. Claim, how presented, and verification of.	827. Proceeding by referee, and effect of.
823. Claim to be allowed or rejected; if barred, not to be allowed.	828. Claim of executor or administrator.
824. Effect of judgment against executor or administrator.	829. How such claim may be determined.

Publication of notice and contents thereof.

SEC. 820. Every executor or administrator shall, immediately after his appointment, publish a notice thereof in some newspaper published in the precinct, if there be one, or otherwise in such paper as may be designated by the commissioner, as often as once a week for four successive weeks, and oftener if the commissioner shall so direct. In case of publication in a paper published without the precinct, the executor or administrator shall also post a notice in at least three public places, to be designated by the commissioner in his order, one of which shall be at or immediately adjacent to the post-office nearest the residence of the decedent at the time of his death. Such notice shall require all persons having claims against the estate to present them, with the proper vouchers, within six months from the date of such notice, to the executor or the administrator, at a place within the precinct therein specified.

Proof of publication; effect of not presenting claim

SEC. 821. Before the expiration of the six months mentioned in the last section, a copy of the notice as published, with the proper proof of publication, shall be filed with the commissioner. A claim not presented within six months after the first publication of the notice is not barred, but it can not be paid until the claims presented within that period have been satisfied, and if the claim be not then due, or if it be contingent, it shall nevertheless be presented as any other claim. Until the administration has been completed a claim against the estate not barred by the statute of limitations may be presented, allowed, and paid out of any assets then in the hands of the executor or administrator not otherwise appropriated or liable.

Claim, how presented, and verification of.

SEC. 822. Every claim presented to the executor or administrator shall be verified by the affidavit of the claimant or some one on his behalf who has personal knowledge of the facts, to the effect that the amount claimed is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon, except as stated, and that there is no just counterclaim to the same, to the knowledge of the affiant. When it appears or is alleged that there is any written evidence of such claim, the same may be demanded by the executor or administrator, or that its nonproduction be accounted for.

Claim to be allowed or rejected; if barred, not to be allowed.

SEC. 823. When the claim is presented to the executor or administrator, as prescribed in the last section, if he shall be satisfied that the claim thus presented is just, he shall indorse upon it the words "examined and approved," with the date thereof, and sign the same officially, and shall pay such claim in due course of administration; but if he shall not be so satisfied, he shall indorse thereon the words "examined and rejected," with the date thereof, and sign the same officially. Every executor or administrator shall keep a list of all demands legally exhibited against the estate of the testator or intestate, and shall, every three months, file with the commissioner a statement of all such claims as have been presented, and whether the same have been allowed or rejected by him. If any executor or administrator shall refuse to allow any claim or demand against the deceased after the same may have been exhibited to him in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the claimant may present his claim to the commissioner having jurisdiction or to the district court or the judge thereof for allowance, giving the executor or administrator thirty days' notice of such application to the court. The district court or the judge thereof shall have power to hear and determine in a summary manner all demands against any estate agreeably to the provisions of this chapter, and which have been so rejected by the executor or administrator, and shall cause a concise entry of the order of allowance or rejection to be made on the record, which order shall have the force and effect of a judgment, from which an appeal may be taken as in ordinary cases: Provided, No claim which shall have been rejected by the executor or administrator, as aforesaid, shall be allowed by any court, judge, referee, or jury, except upon some competent or satisfactory evidence other than the testimony of the claimant. No claim shall be allowed by the executor or administrator or the district court or judge which is barred by the statute of limitations.

SEC. 824. The effect of a judgment against an executor or administrator, on account of a claim against the estate of his testator or intestate, is only to establish the claim as if it had been allowed by him, so as to require it to be satisfied in due course of administration, unless it appear that the complaint alleged assets in his hands applicable to the satisfaction of such claim, and that such allegation was admitted or found to be true, in which case the judgment may be enforced against such executor or administrator personally.

Effect of judgment against executor or administrator.

SEC. 825. A claim established by judgment against the deceased in his lifetime need not be verified by affidavit, but it is sufficient to present a certified copy of the judgment docket thereof to the executor or administrator for allowance or rejection, as in other cases; but this section is not to be construed to prevent an execution from being issued upon such judgment, as elsewhere provided in this code.

Judgment against deceased in his lifetime.

SEC. 826. If the executor or administrator doubt the validity of any claim presented to him, he may agree, in writing, with the claimant that an order of reference be made by the commissioner thereof concerning the same. Upon the filing of such agreement, the commissioner shall make the order accordingly.

When and how claim may be referred.

SEC. 827. The referee shall proceed to hear and examine the matter, and report thereon to the commissioner, where the order of reference was made, in the same manner and with like effect as if the order was made in an action upon such claim.

Proceeding by referee, and effect of.

SEC. 828. If the executor or administrator is himself a creditor of the testator or intestate, his claim, duly verified, may be presented to the commissioner for allowance or rejection; but the allowance of such claim by such commissioner does not conclude a creditor, heir, or other person interested in the estate in any action or proceeding between such executor or administrator and such creditor, heir, or other person.

Claim of executor or administrator.

SEC. 829. If the commissioner reject the claim of the executor or administrator, either in whole or in part, or in case the same is not presented for allowance, as provided in the last section, the executor or administrator may retain the amount thereof until the final settlement of his accounts, when, if the same is controverted or objected to by any person interested in the estate, the right of the executor or administrator to have the allowance claimed shall be tried and determined by the court. If the claim is not presented to the commissioner, as provided in the section last preceding, before it is barred by the statute of limitations, such claim can not be allowed, retained or recovered.

How such claim may be determined.

The application for an order of sale shall be by the petition of the executor or administrator, and in case of real property a citation to the heirs and others interested in such property.

Order of sale of personal property.

SEC. 831. Upon the filing of the inventory the executor or administrator may make an application to sell the personal property of the estate for the purpose of paying the funeral charges, expenses of administration, the claims, if any, against the estate, and for the purposes of distribution; and it shall be the duty of the commissioner to grant such order, if in his judgment it is for the best interest of the estate, and to direct and prescribe the terms of sale upon which such property shall be sold, whether for cash or on credit.

May be sold at private sale.

SEC. 833. If, upon the application for an order of sale, or upon a subsequent application for that purpose, it appears to the commissioner that it would be for the interest of the estate, he may order that the executor or administrator may sell all the personal property of the estate or any article thereof at private sale. If any articles of personal property have been specially bequeathed, they are to be exempt from the operation of the order of sale so long as any property of the estate not specially devised or bequeathed remains unsold or appropriated to the purposes specified in section eight hundred and sixty-eight.

When real property may be sold where specially devised.

SEC. 834. When the proceeds of the sale of personal property have been exhausted, and the charges, expenses, and claims specified in section eight hundred and thirty-one have not all been satisfied, the executor or administrator shall sell the real property of the estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose. If any of such real property have been specially devised, it shall be exempt from the operation of the order of sale in the same manner as personal property specially bequeathed.

SEC. 835. The petition for the order of sale of real property shall state the amount of the sales of personal property, the charges, expenses, and claims still unsatisfied, so far as the same can be ascertained, a description of the real property of the estate, the condition and probable value of the different portions or lots thereof, the amount and nature of any liens thereon, the names, ages, and residence of the devisees, if any, and of the heirs of the deceased, so far as known.

Petition for order of sale of real property.

SEC. 836. Upon the filing of the petition a citation shall issue to the devisees and heirs therein mentioned, and to all others unknown, if any such there be, to appear at a time therein mentioned, not less than thirty days after the service of such citation, to show cause, if any exist, why an order of sale should not be made as in the petition prayed for.

Citation to heirs and devisees to show cause.

SEC. 837. Upon an heir or devisee known and resident within the district such citation shall be served and returned as a summons, and upon an heir or devisee unknown or nonresident it may be served by publication or posting, or both, not less than four weeks, or for such further time as the commissioner may prescribe. When service is had by posting, the citation shall be posted at not less than three public places within the precinct, one of which shall be the post-office nearest to the place where the decedent resided at the time of his death. When service of the citation is made by publication or posting, there shall be given with it a brief description of the property described in the petition.

Service of citation.

SEC. 838. If, upon the hearing, the court find that it is necessary that the real property, or any portion thereof, should be sold, it shall make the order accordingly, and prescribe the terms thereof, whether of cash or credit, or both; and if such property can not be divided without probable injury and loss to the estate, it may order that it, or any specific lot or portion thereof, shall be sold wholly, whether otherwise necessary or not.

Hearing and order of sale.

SEC. 839. Upon the order being made, the executor or administrator shall sell the property therein specified upon the terms directed and in the manner herein otherwise provided. Such sale shall be made in the same manner as like property is sold on execution: Provided, however, The commissioner may, if thought best, order said property to be sold on the premises. When the sale is upon credit the executor or administrator shall take the note of the purchaser for the purchase money, with a mortgage upon the property to secure the payment thereof.

Sale now made; security for purchase money.

SEC. 840. Within ten days after the sale of real property the executor or administrator shall make a return of his proceedings concerning such sale. Upon such return any of the persons cited to appear on the application for the order of sale may file his objections to the confirmation of such sale.

Return of sale, and objections thereto.

SEC. 841. Upon the hearing the court shall confirm the sale and decree that the executor or administrator make a conveyance to the purchaser, unless it appear that there were irregularities in the sale, or that the sum bidden for the property is disproportionate to the value thereof, and that a sum exceeding such bid at least ten per centum, exclusive of the expenses of a new sale, may be obtained therefor, in either of which cases the court shall make an order vacating the sale and directing that the property be resold; and upon such second sale the property, or any specific portion or lot thereof, ordered to be resold shall be sold as if no previous sale had taken place. In case no objections are made to the confirmation of the sale as provided in the section last preceding, the court shall nevertheless examine the proceedings concerning such sale, and, if it appear proper, may make the order of resale provided for in this section in the same manner and with like effect as if objections had been filed thereto.

When sale confirmed and when vacated.

Recitation conveyance and effect thereof.

SEC. 842. A conveyance executed by an executor or administrator shall set forth the date of the order directing the sale, and the book, number thereof, and page containing the same, and the date of the order confirming the sale and directing the conveyance, and the book, number thereof, and page containing the same, and the title of the court making such orders, and shall operate to convey all the estate, right, and interest of the testator or intestate in the premises at the time of his death.

When real property may be sold to pay legacy, etc.

SEC. 843. When a testator shall have specially bequeathed any specific article of personal property, or given any legacy by will, and there shall not be sufficient personal property, besides such specific article or the value of such legacy, to pay the funeral charges, expenses of administration, and claims against the estate, the executor or administrator shall obtain an order to sell the real property sufficient to make up the deficiency, in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Sale of property under will.

SEC. 844. When the testator shall make provision in his will for the sale or disposition of all or any particular portion of his estate, for the payment of funeral charges, expenses of administration, or of claims against the estate, the property so appropriated may be sold or disposed of as directed by the executor or administrator with the will annexed, without an order of the court therefor; but he shall be bound to conduct the sale and make a return thereof in all respects as if it were made by order of the court, unless there are special directions in the will concerning the manner and terms of sale, in which case he shall be governed by such directions in such respects.

Proceeding in case property appropriated insufficient.

SEC. 845. If the provision made by the will or the property thereby appropriated be insufficient for the purpose intended, the remaining portion of the estate may be sold for that purpose, according to the provisions of this chapter.

Bequests and legacies, when liable for debts.

SEC. 846. The property, real and personal, given by the will to any devisee or legatee is liable for the payment of the funeral charges, expenses of administration, and of claims against the estate; and if there be more than one such devisee or legatee, then in proportion to the value or amount of the several devises and legacies; except that specific devises and legacies shall be exempt from such liability, if such appear to have been the intention of the testator and there be other sufficient property to satisfy such charges, expenses, and claims.

Sale of contract for the purchase of real property.

SEC. 847. If the deceased was, at the time of his death, a party to a contract for the purchase of real property, his interest in such real property by virtue of such contract may be sold in the same manner as if such contract had been executed in the lifetime of the deceased, by a conveyance to him of such property according to the legal effect and terms of such contract.

Sale subject to payments to be made on contract.

SEC. 848. If there be any payments due, or to become due, on such contract, to the vendor of the deceased, sale is made subject thereto, and before the same can be confirmed, or the contract assigned to the purchaser, such purchaser shall execute an undertaking, with one or more sufficient sureties in an amount not less than double the value of all the payments then due or to become due, for the benefit of whom it may concern, to be void upon the condition that such purchaser will make all such payments according to the terms of such contract, and indemnify the executor or administrator or others whom it may concern, against all damages, costs, and expenses by reason of any covenant or agreement contained in such contract.

Assignment of contract and effect thereof.

SEC. 849. The order of confirmation of such sale shall direct the executor or administrator to make an assignment of such contract to the purchaser, which assignment shall vest in the purchaser, his heirs and assigns, all the estate, right, and interest of the deceased at the time of his death in such real property, and give to the purchaser the same rights and remedies against the vendor thereof as the deceased would have had or been entitled to if living.

SEC. 850. If the deceased left any property, real or personal, under mortgage, and did not devise or provide for the redemption of the same by will, the commissioner, upon the application of the executor or administrator, or the application of an heir or creditor, or other person interested in the estate, may order the executor or administrator to redeem such property out of the proceeds of the other personal property, if it appear that such redemption would be for the interest of the estate, and not prejudicial to creditors.

Order to redeem mortgaged property.

SEC. 851. If, upon such application, such redemption be deemed not proper or inexpedient, the commissioner shall order such property to be sold in like manner and with like effect as is provided in other cases of the sale of real property by this chapter; and the conveyance to the purchaser shall operate to convey to him all the estate, right, and interest which the deceased would have had in the property had not the same been mortgaged by him.

Order for the sale of mortgaged property.

SEC. 852. Ten days before making an order for the application of the proceeds of such sale, the mortgagee or other person to whom the debt which is secured by such mortgage is payable shall be cited to appear and show the amount of his debt, and make his objections, if any, to the report of the expenses of the proceeding and sale as claimed by the executor or administrator; and thereupon the court shall order that the proceeds of the sale be first applied to the payment of the proper expenses of the proceeding and sale, and secondly, to the satisfaction of such debt, and the residue, if any, in due course of administration.

Application of proceeds of sale.

SEC. 853. The three sections last preceding shall not be construed to include a mortgage which has been foreclosed, or upon which a suit has been commenced for foreclosure before the application for the order of redemption or sale is made, nor to any other lien arising upon judgment or decree given against the deceased in his lifetime.

When mortgage foreclosed or suit commenced for that purpose.

SEC. 854. If the debt secured by the mortgage mentioned in section eight hundred and fifty be not due at the time of the making of the order for redemption or application of the proceeds of sale, the party to whom it is payable shall be entitled to receive in satisfaction thereof such sum as may be ascertained to be equal to the present value thereof.

When debt not due, how satisfied.

SEC. 855. The order of confirmation of sale in this chapter mentioned is conclusive as to the regularity of the sale and no further. All purchases of the property of the estate by an executor or administrator, however made, whether directly or indirectly, are prohibited, and if made are void.

Effect of order confirming sale.

SEC. 856. Whenever the assets of the estate are insufficient to satisfy the funeral charges, expenses of administration, and the claims against the estate, and the deceased shall in his lifetime have made or suffered any conveyance, transfer, or sale of any property, real or personal, or any right or interest therein, with intent to delay, hinder, or defraud creditors, or when such conveyance, transfer, or sale has been so made or suffered that the same is void in law as against creditors, or when the deceased in his lifetime has suffered, consented, or procured any judgment or decree to be given against him with such intent or in such manner as to be likewise void, it is the duty of such executor or administrator to make application by petition to the commissioner for leave to commence and prosecute to final judgment or decree the necessary and proper actions or proceedings to have such conveyance, transfer, sale, or judgment declared void, and the property affected thereby discharged from the effect thereof.

Fraudulent or void conveyance of judgments of the deceased.

SEC. 857. If upon the application it appear to such commissioner that the assets are insufficient for the purposes specified in the last section, and that it is probable that the conveyance, transfer, or judgment was made, suffered, consented to, or procured with the intent or in the manner specified in the last section, he shall make the order directing the proceedings to be commenced and prosecuted as to any or all of the matters alleged in the petition and necessary to supply the deficiency in the assets.

Order allowing proceedings to vacate.

Disposition of property recovered on such proceedings.

SEC. 858. The property recovered by means of any proceeding in pursuance of the last two sections is to be sold and appropriated to supply the deficiency mentioned in section eight hundred and fifty-six in the same manner as other like property; but the right to or interest in the surplus, if any, remains as if such proceeding had not been allowed or commenced.

CHAPTER EIGHTY-SIX.

OF THE ACCOUNTS OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

Sec.	Sec.
859. When filed and what to contain.	865. Administrator chargeable with amount of inventory.
860. Proceeding if administrator neglect to file account.	866. For what administrator responsible.
861. Order for the payment of expenses, charges, and claims.	867. Expenses and compensation of administrator.
862. Final account, when filed and what to contain.	868. Same subject.
863. Objections to final account, by whom, and when made.	869. Amount of compensation.
864. Decree upon final account and effect thereof.	870. Proceeding in case of neglect to file final account.
	871. Administrator may compound for debt due estate.

When filed and what to contain.

SEC. 859. An executor or administrator shall, within six months from the date of the notice of his appointment, and every six months thereafter until the administration is completed and he is discharged from his trust, render an account, verified by his own oath, and file the same with the commissioner, showing the amount of the money received and expended by him, from whom received and to whom paid, with the proper vouchers for such payments, the amount of the claims presented against the estate and allowed or disallowed and the name of the claimants of each, and any other matter necessary to show the condition of the affairs thereof.

Proceeding if administrator neglect to file account.

SEC. 860. An executor or administrator who shall fail to file an account as required in the last section may be required by a citation or ordered by a commissioner to appear and do so, either upon the application of an heir or creditor, or other person interested in the estate, or without it. If the executor or administrator refuses or neglects to appear when cited, or to file the account as required, he may be punished as for a contempt, or by warrant of the commissioner be committed to close custody in jail until he consent to do so.

Order for the payment of expenses, charges, and claims.

SEC. 861. Within thirty days after the filing of the first semiannual account, and at each semiannual account thereafter, the commissioner shall ascertain and determine if the estate be sufficient to satisfy the claims allowed by the executor or administrator, within the first six months or any succeeding period of six months thereafter, after the date of the notice of his appointment, after paying the funeral charges and expenses of administration; and if so, he shall so order and direct; but if the estate be insufficient for that purpose, he shall ascertain what per centum of such claims it is sufficient to satisfy, and order and direct accordingly.

Final account, when filed and what to contain.

SEC. 862. When the estate is fully administered it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator to file his final account. Such account shall be verified and contain a detailed statement of the amount of money received and expended by him, from whom received and to whom paid, and refer to the vouchers for such payments, and the amount of money and property, if any, remaining unexpended or unappropriated. Upon the filing of the final account, the commissioner shall make an order directing notice thereof to be given in the same manner as the notice of an appointment of an executor or administrator, and appoint a day not less than sixty days subsequent thereafter for the hearing of objections to such final account and the settlement thereof.

SEC. 863. An heir, creditor, or other person interested in the estate may, on or before the day appointed for such hearing and settlement, file his objections thereto, or to any particular item thereof, specifying the particulars of such objections; but no creditor shall be allowed to object to such account whose claim has been satisfied, as allowed by the executor or administrator or established by judgment.

Objections to final account, by whom, and when made.

SEC. 864. Upon the hearing the court shall give a decree allowing or disallowing the final account, either in whole or in part, as may be just and right; and such decree in any other action or proceeding between the parties interested or their representatives is primary evidence of the correctness of the account as thereby allowed and settled.

Decree upon final account and effect thereof.

SEC. 865. An executor or administrator is chargeable in his account with all the property of the estate which may come into his possession, at the value of the appraisement contained in the inventory, except as in this chapter otherwise provided.

Administrator chargeable with amount of inventory.

SEC. 866. He shall not make profit by the increase in value of the property of the estate, or suffer loss for the decrease in value or the destruction thereof, without his fault; and if any of the property of the estate sell for more than its appraised value he shall account for the excess, and if any such property sell for less than its appraised value he shall not be responsible for the loss, unless occasioned by his fault. He shall not be accountable for the debts due the estate if it appear that they remain uncollected without his fault. He shall not purchase any claim against the estate which he represents, and if he satisfies any such claim for less than its nominal value he is only entitled to charge in his account the sum actually paid.

For what administrator responsible.

SEC. 867. An executor or administrator shall be allowed, in the settlement of his account, all necessary expenses incurred in the care, management, and settlement of the estate, including reasonable attorney's fees in any necessary litigation or matter requiring legal advice or counsel. For his services he shall receive such compensation as the law provides; but when the deceased, by his will, has made special provision for the compensation of his executor, such executor is not entitled to any other compensation for his services unless he shall, within ten days after his appointment, subscribe and file with the commissioner a written declaration renouncing the compensation provided by the will.

Expenses and compensation of administrator.

SEC. 868. Notwithstanding the provision in the will for the compensation of an executor, if the estate be insufficient to satisfy the claims against it, the commissioner shall reduce such compensation, so far as may be necessary to satisfy such claims, to an amount equal to what the executor would have been entitled to if no such provision had been made.

Same subject.

SEC. 869. The compensation provided by law for an executor or an administrator is a commission upon the whole estate accounted for by him, as follows:

Amount of compensation.

First. For the first thousand dollars, or any less sum, at the rate of seven per centum thereof;

Second. For all above that sum and not exceeding two thousand dollars, at the rate of five per centum thereof;

Third. For all above two thousand and not exceeding four thousand dollars, at the rate of four per centum thereof;

Fourth. For all above the last-mentioned sum, at the rate of two per centum thereof.

In all cases, such further compensation as is just and reasonable may be allowed by the commissioner for any extraordinary and unusual services not ordinarily required of an executor or administrator in the discharge of his trust.

Proceeding in case of neglect to file final account.

SEC. 870. Before the time appointed for the hearing and settlement of a final account the executor or administrator shall file with the commissioner a copy of the notice thereof, with the proper proof of its publication or posting as directed. An executor or administrator who shall fail to file his final account as provided in section eight hundred and sixty-two may be proceeded against in like manner and with like effect as provided in section eight hundred and sixty in case of failure to file a semiannual account.

Administrator may compound for debt due estate.

SEC. 871. Whenever a debtor of a deceased person is unable to pay all his debts, an executor or administrator, by an order of the commissioner, may compound with him and give him a discharge upon receiving a fair and just proportion of his effects; but if such compounding is procured or produced by the fraudulent representations or conduct of such debtor, such payment shall only operate to discharge a like amount of the debt.

CHAPTER EIGHTY-SEVEN.

OF THE PAYMENT OF CLAIMS AND CHARGES.

Sec.	Sec.
872. Order of payment of charges and claims.	880. Distribution and payment of legacies.
873. Proceeds of real property to be applied in satisfaction of lien.	881. When real property discharged from administration.
874. How judgment or decree satisfied when given in lifetime of deceased.	882. Application of heir or other person for share of estate.
875. If estate insufficient, payment to be in proportion.	883. Notice and proceedings thereon.
876. Funeral charges, who may incur and when allowed.	884. Qualification of sureties in undertaking, and costs.
877. Administrator may retain compensation and expenses.	885. Application for decree to refund.
878. Debts not due or contingent.	886. Proceedings thereon, and how decree enforced.
879. Administrator liable to creditor personally, when.

Order of payment of charges and claims.

SEC. 872. The charges and claims against the estate which have been presented and allowed, or presented and disallowed but subsequently established by judgment within the first six months after the date of the notice of appointment of the executor or administrator, shall be paid in the following order, and those presented and allowed or established in like manner with each succeeding period of six months thereafter during the continuance of the administration in the same manner: First, funeral charges; second, taxes of whatever nature due the United States; third, expenses of last sickness; fourth, all other taxes of whatever nature; fifth, debts preferred by the laws of the United States; sixth, debts which at the death of the deceased were a lien upon his property or any right or interest therein according to the priority of their several liens; seventh, debts due employee of decedent for wages earned within the ninety days immediately preceding the death of the decedent; eighth, all other claims against the estate.

Proceeds of real property to be applied in satisfaction of lien.

SEC. 873. The preference given by subdivision sixth of the last section shall extend only to the proceeds of the property upon which the lien exists, and as to such proceeds such debt is to be preferred to any of the classes mentioned in such section other than the taxes upon such property.

How judgment or decree satisfied when given in lifetime of deceased.

SEC. 874. If such debt has been established by judgment against the deceased in his lifetime, such judgment, if the proceeds of the personal property be not sufficient to satisfy it, may, in the discretion of the commissioner, be either satisfied from the proceeds of the sale of the property by the executor or administrator upon which it is a lien, or enforced by execution against such property. Such sale by the executor or administrator discharges the property from the lien of the judgment, but the same attaches to the proceeds thereof, after deducting therefrom the expenses of sale.

SEC. 875. Except as specially provided in the last three sections, if the estate be insufficient to pay all the claims and charges of any one class, payable within any period of six months during the administration, as provided in section eight hundred and seventy-two, each creditor of such class shall be paid in proportion to the amount of his claim, and not otherwise.

If estate insufficient, payment to be in proportion.

SEC. 876. The executor named in the will, or if there be none, or if he do not attend to it, then the husband, widow, or next of kin, in the order herein named, are authorized to incur funeral charges on account of the estate in the burial of the deceased before administration of the estate is granted, and the burial of the deceased may be in a manner and at a cost according to his circumstances and condition in life; but no funeral charges, except those necessary to give the deceased a plain and decent burial, shall be allowed out of the estate where the assets are not sufficient to satisfy all other claims against it, including the legacies and devises, if there be any.

Funeral charges who may incur and when allowed.

SEC. 877. The executor or administrator may retain in his hands, in preference to any claim or charge against the estate, the amount of his own compensation and the necessary expenses of administration.

Administrator may retain compensation and expenses.

SEC. 878. A debt due and payable is not entitled to preference over one of the same class not due if the latter be presented within the same period. A debt not due, whether contingent or absolute, upon being presented shall, if absolute, be satisfied by the payment of such sum as the commissioner may prescribe by order to be equal to its present value, and if contingent, by the payment into court for the benefit of the creditor, subject to the contingency, of a sum, to be ascertained in like manner, equal to its present value.

Debts not due or contingent.

SEC. 879. When, upon the filing of a semiannual account, an order is made determining and prescribing the amount of assets applicable to the claims then presented, as provided in section eight hundred and sixty-one, thereafter the executor or administrator is personally liable to each creditor included in such order for such amount.

When administrator liable to creditor personally.

SEC. 880. If all the charges and claims shall have been satisfied upon the first distribution of the assets, or as soon thereafter as they may be, the commissioner shall direct the payment of legacies and the distribution of the remaining proceeds of the personal property among the heirs or other persons entitled thereto.

Distribution and payment of legacies.

SEC. 881. The real property of the deceased is the property of those to whom it descends by law or is devised by will, subject to the possession of the executor or administrator, and to be applied to the satisfaction of claims against the estate, as by this chapter provided; but upon the settlement of the estate and the termination of the administration thereof so much of such real property as remains unsold or unappropriated is discharged from such possession and liability without any order or decree therefor. But if there be any surplus of the proceeds of sale of such real property, or any part thereof, the commissioner shall order and direct a distribution of such surplus among those who would have been entitled to such land if the same had not been sold.

When real property discharged from administration.

SEC. 882. At any time after the filing of the first semiannual account any heir, devisee, or legatee may apply to the commissioner by petition for an order that he have the possession and rents and profits thereof of the portion of the real property to which he may be entitled, and that payment be made to him of his legacy or distributive share of the personal property of such estate, as the case may be.

Application of heir or other person for share of estate.

Notice and proceedings thereon

SEC. 883. Notice of the application shall be given to the executor or administrator thirty days before the time at which it is made. If upon the hearing it appear that the estate is but little in debt, the commissioner may, in his discretion, grant the petition or some part thereof upon the condition that such applicant file with the commissioner, within a time in the order specified, an undertaking, with one or more sufficient sureties, for the benefit of whom it may concern, in a sum double the value of such real property, legacy, or distributive share, to be void upon the condition that such heir, legatee, or devisee will pay, when required, his portion toward satisfying any claim against the estate.

Qualification of sureties in undertaking, and costs.

SEC. 884. The sureties in such undertaking shall have the same qualifications as sureties in bail upon arrest, and shall justify before the commissioner in like manner. The costs of the proceeding shall be paid by the applicant.

Application for decree to refund.

SEC. 885. If after the giving of such undertaking it shall become necessary, to satisfy any claim against the estate, to require the payment of all or any part of the sum therein specified, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator to apply by petition to the commissioner for a decree to that effect. Notice of the application shall be given to the party filing the undertaking twenty days before the time at which the application is made.

Proceedings thereon, and how decree enforced

SEC. 886. If upon the hearing it appear necessary and proper that such payment should be made, the commissioner shall decree accordingly, specifying therein the amount to be paid, and within what time; and if the amount be not paid within the time specified, the decree may be enforced against such party and the sureties in the undertaking, by execution, in the same manner as a judgment in the district court.

others being inhabitants or residents in such precinct, and also such as shall reside without the district and have any estate within the same.

SEC. 889. If the minor is under the age of fourteen years the commissioner may nominate and appoint his guardian, and if he be above that age he may nominate his own guardian, who, if approved by the commissioner having jurisdiction of the estate, shall be appointed accordingly; and if the guardian nominated by such minor shall not be approved by such commissioner, or if the minor shall reside without the district, or if, after having been cited by the commissioner, he shall neglect to nominate a suitable person, the commissioner may nominate and appoint the guardian in the same manner as if the minor were under fourteen years of age.

Third. That the convenience of parties and witnesses would be promoted by such change, and that the motion is not made for the purpose of delay.

The motion for change of the place of trial can not be made or allowed in any action until after the cause is at issue on a question of fact only. If the motion is allowed, the change shall be made to the nearest justice. Neither party shall be entitled to more than one change of the place of trial, except for causes not in existence when the first change was allowed. Trial by court, how judgment may be given.

SEC. 973. When an issue of fact is tried by the justice it is not necessary that there should be any special statement of the facts found or law determined on such trial, but it is sufficient for the court to give judgment generally, as the law and the evidence may require, for the Execution, renewal of.

SEC. 993. At any time before the expiration of the return day of the execution it may be renewed for another period of thirty days, at the request of the plaintiff, by an indorsement to that effect, made by the justice thereon. Justice may enforce judgment given by his predecessor.

SEC. 994. SEC. 996. The appeal is taken to the district court, and may be taken within thirty days from the date of the entry of the judgment. The party appealing is known as the appellant and the adverse party the respondent, but the title of the action is not thereby changed.

SEC. 997. An appeal is taken by serving a notice thereof on the adverse party or his attorney and filing the original, with the proof of service indorsed thereon, with the justice, and by giving the undertaking for the costs of the appeal as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 998. The undertaking of the appellant must be given, with one or more sureties, to the effect that the appellant will pay all costs and disbursements that may be awarded against him on the appeal; but such undertaking does not stay the proceedings unless the undertaking further provides to the effect following, that the appellant will satisfy any judgment that may be given against him in the appellate court on the appeal.

SEC. 999. If the judgment appealed from be in favor of the appellant, the proceedings thereon are stayed by the notice of appeal and the undertaking for the costs of the appeal.

SEC. 1000. When an appeal is taken the justice must allow the same and make an entry thereof in his docket, stating whether the proceedings are thereby stayed or not. When the proceedings are stayed, if an execution has been issued to enforce the judgment, the justice must recall the same by written notice to the officer holding the execution, and thereupon it must be returned and all property taken thereon and not sold released; and if the body of the defendant has been taken on execution he must be discharged from custody.

Dismissal of appeal.

SEC. 1004. The district court, on motion of the respondent, may, at any time before the action is called for trial, dismiss the appeal, if it satisfactorily appear that the transcript and original papers annexed are incomplete in any material particular, unless upon the cross motion of the appellant it makes a rule upon the justice to supply such omission, upon such terms against the appellant as may be just. At any time before the trial the court may dismiss the appeal upon the motion of the appellant.

Judgment in the appellate court.

SEC. 1005. When an appeal is dismissed the district court must give judgment as it was given in the court below, and against the appellant, for the costs and disbursements of the appeal. When judgment is given in the appellate court against the appellant, either with or without trial of the action, it must also be given against the sureties in his undertaking according to the nature and effect of it. If the appellant fail to file such transcript within the time required, the adverse party may file a transcript of the judgment of the justice, and the notice and undertaking on appeal, which, on demand, the justice shall deliver to him for that purpose, and thereupon have such appeal dismissed and judgment against the appellant and his sureties as provided in this section.

Defective undertaking, how cured.

SEC. 1006. An appeal can not be dismissed on the motion of the respondent, on account of the undertaking therefor being defective, if the appellant, before the determination of the motion to dismiss, will execute a sufficient undertaking, and file the same in the appellate court, upon such terms as may be deemed just.

Amendment of pleadings in the appellate court.

SEC. 1007. In all cases of appeal the bill of items of the account sued on, or filed as a counterclaim or set-off, or the abatement of the plaintiff's cause of action, or of the defendant's counterclaim or set-off, or other ground of defense filed before the justice, may be amended upon appeal in the appellate court to supply any defect, deficiency, or omission therein, by filing formal pleadings therein when by such amendment substantial justice will be promoted; and in all cases when required by the court, or by either party to the action, formal pleadings shall be filed on either side upon the trial of the cause on appeal; when either party requires such formal pleadings, he shall cause to be served on the opposite party a notice thereof in writing, and file the same in the court where the cause is pending by the first day of the term of such court at which such cause is to be tried; but no new item or cause of action not embraced or intended to be included in the original account or statement shall be added by such amendment.

SEC. 183. The United States may maintain any action or proceeding necessary to recover the possession of any such property, or for the enforcement or protection of its rights thereto or on account thereof, in like manner and with like effect as any natural person. Such action or proceeding shall be prosecuted by the United States attorney, by the leave and under the direction of the Attorney-General, and not otherwise.

Proceedings to obtain possession.

SEC. 184. When the governor is informed or has reason to believe that any real or personal property has escheated to the United States, he shall direct the United States attorney to file an information in behalf and in the name of the United States in the district court, setting forth a description of the estate, the name of the person last seized, the name of the occupant or the person in possession and claiming such estate, if known, and the facts and circumstances in consequence of which the estate is claimed to have been escheated, with an allegation that by reason thereof the United States has right by law to such estate. Upon such information a summons must issue to such person, requiring him to appear and answer the information within the time allowed by law in civil actions, and the court must make an order setting forth briefly the contents of the information and requiring all persons interested in the estate to appear and show cause, if any they have, within such time as the court making such order may fix, why the title should not vest in the United States, which order must be published for at least six consecutive weeks from the date thereof, in a newspaper published in the precinct, if one be published therein, and in case no newspaper is published in the precinct, then in such newspaper in the district as the court by order may direct.

Governor must take steps to recover.

SEC. 185. The court, upon the information being filed, with and upon the application of the United States attorney, either before or after answer, upon notice to the party claiming such estate, if known, may, upon sufficient cause therefor being shown, appoint a receiver to take charge of such estate, and receive the rents and profits of the same, until the title to such estate is finally settled.

But if any person appears and denies the title set up by the United States, or traverses any material fact set forth in the information, the issue of the fact must be tried as issues of facts are tried in civil actions. If, after the issues are tried, it appears from the facts found that the United States has good title to the estate in the information mentioned, or any part thereof, judgment must be rendered that the United States be seized thereof, and recover costs of action against the defendant. In any judgment rendered, or that has heretofore been rendered, by any court of competent jurisdiction, escheating real property to the United States, on motion of the United States attorney the court shall make an order that the real property be sold by the marshal at public sale, and upon such terms, whether for cash or credit, or both, as shall be deemed for the best interests of the United States. But if it appears to the court that the sale was legally made and fairly conducted, and that the sum bid is not disproportionate to the value of the property sold, and that a greater sum than ten per centum, exclusive of the expense of a new sale, can not be obtained, the court must make an order confirming the sale and directing the marshal in the name of the United States to execute to the purchaser or purchasers a conveyance of the property sold; and the conveyance shall vest in the purchaser or purchasers all the right and title of the United States therein; and also directing that the purchaser or purchasers shall execute and deliver to the marshal his or their note or notes, payable to the United States for the deferred payments with a first mortgage upon the property conveyed, to secure the deferred payments. And the marshal shall, out of the proceeds of such sale, pay the cost of the proceedings incurred on behalf of the United States, including the expense of making such sale, and the remainder, together with the notes and mortgages, he shall deliver to the United States attorney, taking his receipt therefor, and the United States attorney shall deposit the sum with the clerk of the district court, who shall pay the same into the Treasury of the United States in the manner provided by law for other moneys recovered in actions by the United States.

All persons who fail to appear and file their petition within the time limited by law are forever barred, saving, however, to infants, and persons of unsound mind, the right to appear and file their petitions at any time within the time limited, or one year after their respective disabilities cease.

Proceedings in case of personal property.

SEC. 188. In all cases of personal estate, the court shall direct by order that the same be sold by the marshal, as upon execution, and the proceeds be applied to the payment of the costs incurred by the United States and the costs and charges of making such sale, and the residue to the district attorney, who shall pay the same to the clerk of the court as hereinbefore provided.

Escheated property held by bank.

SEC. 189. When the governor is informed or has reason to believe that any bank, banker, or banking institution in the district now has or holds on deposit or otherwise any fund, funds, or other property of any kind or nature which has escheated to the district, he shall direct the United States attorney to file in the district court an information or bill of discovery, with proper interrogatories to be answered by the owner, agent, or manager of such bank or banking institution, and upon the filing of such information or bill the court shall order and direct, at a time to be designated in the bill, that the owner, agent, or manager of such bank or banking institution shall, under oath, file an answer to the information and interrogatories, and shall specially answer each and every interrogatory contained in such information or bill. If it appears to the court from such answer that the bank, banker, or banking institution has any property in its possession which has or may escheat to the United States, it shall direct the bank, banker, or banking institution forthwith to bring the same into such court, and the court shall proceed to dispose of the property as provided elsewhere in this chapter.

(1) All public uses authorized by the Government of the United States.

(2) Public buildings and grounds for the use of the district, and all other public uses authorized by Congress or other legislative authority of the district.

(3) Public buildings and grounds for the use of any precinct, city, town, village, school district, or other municipal division, whether incorporated or unincorporated; canals, aqueducts, flumes, ditches, or pipes conducting water, heat, or gas for the use of the inhabitants of any precinct, city, town, or other municipal division, whether incorporated or unincorporated; raising the banks of streams, removing obstructions therefrom, and widening, deepening, or straightening their channels; roads, streets, and alleys, and all other public uses for the benefit of any precinct, city, town, or other municipal division, whether incorporated or unincorporated, or the inhabitants thereof, which may be authorized by Congress or other legislative authority of the district.

(4) Wharves, docks, piers, chutes, booms, ferries, bridges of all kinds, private roads, plank and turnpike roads, railroads, canals, ditches, flumes, aqueducts, and pipes for public transportation, supplying mines and farming neighborhoods with water, and draining and reclaiming lands, and for floating logs and lumber on streams not navigable, and sites for reservoirs necessary for collecting and storing water.

- (11) Electric power lines.

Sec. 205. That the following is a classification of the estates and rights in lands subject to be taken for public use:

What estates in land may be acquired by condemnation.

(1) A fee simple, when taken for public buildings or grounds, or for permanent buildings, for reservoirs and dams, and permanent flooding occasioned thereby, or for an outlet for a flow, or a place for the deposit of debris or tailings of a mine.

(2) An easement when taken for any other use.

(3) The right of entry upon and occupation of lands, and the right to take therefrom such earth, gravel, stones, trees, and timber as may be necessary for some public use.

Sec. 206. The private property which may be taken under this chapter includes:

Private property defined; classes enumerated.

(1) All real property belonging to any person.

(2) Lands belonging to the district, or to any precinct, city, town, village, or other municipal division, whether incorporated or unincorporated, not appropriated to some public use.

(3) Property appropriated to public use; but such property must not be taken unless for a more necessary purpose than that to which it has already been appropriated.

(4) Franchises for roads, bridges, and ferries, and all other franchises; but such franchises must not be taken unless for free highways, free bridges, railroads, or other more necessary public use.

(5) All rights of way for any and all the purposes mentioned in section two hundred and four, and any and all structures and improvements thereon, and the lands held and used in connection therewith, must be subject to be connected with, crossed, or intersected by any other right of way or improvements or structures thereon. They must also be subject to a limited use, in common with the owner thereof, when necessary; but such uses, crossings, intersections, and connections must be made in manner most compatible with the greatest public benefit and least private injury.

(6) All classes of private property not enumerated may be taken for public use, when such taking is authorized by law.

Sec. 207. Before property can be taken it must appear:

Facts necessary to be found before condemnation.

(1) That the use to which it is to be applied is a use authorized by law.

(2) That the taking is necessary to such use.

(3) If already appropriated to some public use that the public use to which it is to be applied is a more necessary public use.

The plaintiff or defendant or any party interested in the proceedings can appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals for the ninth circuit from any finding or judgment made or rendered under this chapter, as in other cases. Such appeal does not stay any further proceedings under this chapter.

Sec. 208. In all cases where land is required for public use, the district, or its agents in charge of such use, may survey and locate the same; but it must be located in the manner which will be most compatible with the greatest public good and the least private injury, and subject to the provisions of section two hundred and thirteen. The district, or its agents in charge of such public use, may enter upon the land and make examination, surveys, and maps thereof, and such entry shall constitute no cause of action in favor of the owners of the land, except from injuries resulting from negligence, wantonness, or malice.

Parties may make location and enter to make surveys.

Sec. 209. All proceedings under this chapter must be brought in the district court of the district. They must be commenced by filing a complaint and issuing a summons thereon.

Jurisdiction of the district court.

Sec. 210. The complaint must contain:

The complaint and its contents.

(1) The name of the corporation, association, commission, or person in charge of the public use for which the property is sought, who must be styled plaintiff.

(2) The names of all owners and claimants of the property, if known, or a statement that they are unknown, who must be styled defendants.

(3) A statement of the right of the plaintiff.

(4) If a right of way be sought, the complaint must show the location, general route, and termini, and must be accompanied with a map thereof, so far as the same is involved in the action or proceeding.

(5) A description of each piece of land sought to be taken, and whether the same includes the whole or only a part of the entire parcel or tract. All parcels lying in the precinct and required for the same public use may be included in the same or separate proceedings, at the option of the plaintiff, but the court may consolidate or separate them to suit the convenience of parties. When application for the condemnation of a right of way for the purposes of sewerage is made on behalf of a precinct, town, or settlement, the chief executive officer of the same, or, if the same be unincorporated, any three citizens authorized thereunto by a written instrument, signed by not less than one-half of the whole number of male inhabitants of such precinct, town, or settlement over the age of twenty-one years, which fact shall be set forth in the complaint, may be named as plaintiff.

Summons, what to contain; how issued and served.

SEC. 211. Upon the filing of such complaint a summons shall be issued, which shall contain the names of the parties, a description of the lands proposed to be taken, a statement of the public use for which it is sought, and a notice to the defendants to appear before the court or judge, at a time and place therein specified, and show cause why the property described should not be condemned, as prayed for in the complaint. Such summons shall, in other particulars, be in the form of a summons in a civil action, and shall be served in like manner upon each defendant named therein at least twenty days previous to the time designated in such notice for the hearing, and no copy of the complaint need be served. But the failure to make such service upon a defendant does not affect the right to proceed against any or all other of the defendants upon whom service of the summons had been made.

Who may defend.

SEC. 212. All persons named in the complaint in occupation of, or claiming an interest in, any of the property described in the complaint, or in the damages for the taking thereof, though not named, may appear, answer, or demur, each in respect to his own property or interest.

Appointment of commissioners, etc.

SEC. 213. The court or judge has power:

(1) To regulate and determine the place and manner of making the connections and crossings and enjoying the common uses mentioned in subdivision five of section two hundred and six of this chapter, and of the occupying of canyons, passes, and defiles for railroad purposes, as permitted and regulated by law.

(2) To determine whether or not the use for which the property is sought to be appropriated is a public use within the meaning of the laws relating to the district.

(3) To limit the amount of property sought to be appropriated, if in the opinion of the court or judge the quantity sought to be appropriated is not necessary.

(4) If the court or judge is satisfied that the public interests require the taking of such lands, it or he must make an order appointing three competent persons, resident in the precinct, commissioners to ascertain and determine the amount to be paid by the plaintiffs to each owner or other person interested in such property as damages, by reason of the appropriation of such property, and specifying the time and place of the first meeting of such commissioners, and fixing their compensation. Any party may object to the appointment of any person as a commissioner on the same grounds that he might object to him as a trial juror.

SEC. 214. The commissioners mentioned in the last section must, before entering upon their duties, severally take and subscribe an oath before some person qualified to administer oaths, to faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of their appointment. The commissioners must meet at the time and place mentioned in the order appointing them, and proceed to examine the lands sought to be appropriated, and shall hear the allegations and evidence of all persons interested in each of the several parcels of land, and shall ascertain and assess:

Meeting of commissioners.

(1) The value of the property sought to be appropriated, and all improvements thereon, pertaining to the realty and each and of every separate estate and interest therein; if it consists of different parcels, the value of each parcel and each estate or interest therein must be separately assessed.

(2) If the property sought to be appropriated constitutes only a part of a larger parcel, the damages which will accrue to the portion not sought to be condemned by reason of its severance from the portion sought to be condemned, and the construction of the improvements in the manner proposed by the plaintiff.

(3) Separately, how much the portion not sought to be condemned, and each estate or interest therein will be benefited, if at all, by the construction of the improvements proposed by the plaintiff, and if the benefit shall be equal to the damages assessed under subdivision two the owner of the parcel shall be allowed no compensation except the value of the portion taken; but if the benefits shall be less than the damages assessed the former shall be deducted from the latter, and the remainder shall be the only damages allowed in addition to the value.

(4) If the property sought to be condemned be for a railroad, the cost of good and sufficient fences along the line of such railroad, and the cost of cattle guards where fences may cross the line of such railroad.

(5) As far as practicable compensation must be assessed for each source of damage separately.

SEC. 215. For the purpose of assessing compensation and damages, the right thereto shall be deemed to have accrued at the date of the summons; and its actual value at that date shall be the measure of compensation of all property to be actually taken, and the basis of damages to property not actually taken but injuriously affected. If an order be made letting the plaintiff into possession, as provided in section two hundred and twenty-two, the compensation and damages awarded shall draw lawful interest from the date of such order. No improvements put upon the property subsequent to the date of the service of summons shall be included in the assessment of compensation or damages.

Date with respect to which compensation shall be assessed, and measure of damages.

SEC. 216. Within thirty days after giving their appraisal and the assessment of damages, the commissioners must file a report of their proceedings, accompanied by a map, if a right of way be sought, showing the route, location, and termini thereof, in the office of the clerk of the court, and the clerk must notify the parties interested that such report has been filed, which notice must be served upon all the parties interested in the same manner as a summons.

Report of commissioners.

SEC. 217. An appeal from any assessment made by the commissioners may be taken and prosecuted in the court where the report of the commissioners is filed, by any party interested. Such appeal must be taken within the period of thirty days after the service upon appellant of the notice of the filing of the award by the service of notice of such appeal upon the plaintiff or his attorney in such proceedings, and the same shall be brought on for trial upon the same notice and in the same manner as other civil actions; and unless a jury shall be waived by the consent of all parties to such appeal, the same shall be tried by jury, and the damages to which appellant may be entitled by reason of the appropriation of his property, shall be reassessed upon the same principle as hereinbefore prescribed for the assessment of such damages by commissioners. Upon any verdict or assessment by commissioners becoming final, judgment shall be entered declaring that upon payment of such verdict or assessment, together with the interest and costs allowed by law, if any, the right to construct and maintain such railroad, or other public work or improvement, and to take, use, and appropriate the property described in such verdict or assessment, for the use and purposes for which the land has been condemned, shall, as against the parties interested in such verdict or assessment, be and remain in the plaintiff, and his or its heirs, successors, or assigns forever. In case the party appealing from the award of commissioners in any proceeding as aforesaid, shall not succeed in increasing the amount of damages finally awarded to him in such proceeding, he shall not recover the costs of such appeal; but all the costs of the appellee upon such appeal shall be taxed against and recovered from the appellant: Provided, Upon the trial of such appeal the plaintiff may contest the right of any party or parties thereto to any of the property mentioned and set forth or involved in the appeal, which was located after the preliminary survey of any such railroad seeking to condemn its right of way under and pursuant to the provisions of this Act: Provided, Such condemnation proceedings are begun within one year after such preliminary survey.

SEC. 218. If the title attempted to be acquired is found to be defective from any cause, the plaintiff may again institute proceedings to acquire the same, as in this chapter prescribed.

Payment of damages.

SEC. 219. The plaintiff must, within thirty days after final judgment, pay the sum of money assessed; but may, at the time of or before the payment, elect to build the fences and cattle guards; and if he so elect shall execute to the defendant a bond, with sureties to be approved by the court, in double the assessed cost of the same, to build such fences and cattle guards within eight months from the time the railroad is built on the land taken; and if such bond be given, need not pay the cost of such fences and cattle guards. In an action on such bond the plaintiff may recover reasonable attorney's fees.

To whom paid.

SEC. 220. The payment may be made to the defendants entitled thereto, or the money may be deposited in court for the defendants, and be distributed to those entitled thereto. If the money be not so paid or deposited, the defendants may have execution as in civil cases; and if the money can not be made on execution, the court or judge, upon a showing to that effect, must set aside and annul the entire proceedings and restore possession of the property to the defendant, if possession has been taken by the plaintiff.

Final order of condemnation.

SEC. 221. When payments have been made, and the bond given, if the plaintiff elects to give one, as required by the last two sections, the court or judge must make a final order of condemnation, which must describe the property condemned and the purposes of condemnation. A copy of the order must be filed in the office of the commissioner of the recording district wherein the land is located, and thereupon the property described therein shall vest in the plaintiff for the purposes therein specified.

Putting plaintiff in possession.

SEC. 222. At any time after the report and assessment of damages of the commissioners has been made and filed in the court, and either before or after appeal from such assessment, or from any other order or judgment in the proceedings, the court or any judge thereof at chambers, upon application of the plaintiffs, shall have power to make an order that upon payment into court for the defendant entitled thereto of the amount of damages assessed, either by the commissioners or by the jury, as the case may be, the plaintiff be authorized, if already in possession of the property of such defendant sought to be appropriated, to continue in such possession; or, if not in possession, that the plaintiff be authorized to take possession of such property and use and possess the same during the pendency and until the final conclusion of the proceedings and litigation; and that all actions and proceedings against the plaintiff on account thereof be stayed until such time: Provided, however, Where an appeal is taken by such defendant, the court or judge may in its or his discretion require the plaintiff, before continuing or taking such possession, in addition to paying into court the amount of damages assessed, to give a bond or undertaking, with sufficient sureties, to be approved by the judge, and to be in such sum as the court or judge may direct, conditioned to pay defendant any additional damages and costs over and above the amount assessed, which it may finally be determined that defendant is entitled to for the appropriation of the property, and all damages which defendant may sustain if for any cause such property shall not be finally taken for public uses. The amount assessed as damages by the commissioners, or by the jury on appeal, as the case may be, shall be taken and considered, for the purposes of this section, until reassessed or changed in the further proceedings, as just compensation for the property appropriated; but the plaintiff, by payment into court of the amount assessed, or by giving security, as above provided, shall not be thereby prevented or precluded from appealing from such assessment, but may appeal in the same manner and with the same effect as if no money had been deposited or security given; and in all cases where the plaintiff deposits the amount of the assessment and continues in possession or takes possession of the property, as herein provided, the defendant entitled thereto, if there be no dispute as to the ownership of the property, may at any time demand and receive from the court the money so deposited, and shall not by such demand or receipt be barred or concluded from his right of appeal from such assessment, but may, notwithstanding, take and prosecute such appeal from such assessment: Provided, If the amount of such assessment is finally reduced on appeal by either party, such defendant who has received the amount of the assessment deposited shall be liable to the plaintiff for any excess of the amount so received by him over the amount finally assessed, with legal interest on such excess from the time such defendant received the money deposited, and the same may be recovered by action: And provided further, Upon any appeal from the assessment of damages by the commissioners or a jury, the jury may find as compensation or damages a less as well as an equal or greater amount than that assessed by the commissioners.

Bond.

Liability for excess over amount finally assessed, etc.

Appeal, etc.

Payment of costs.

Rules of practice.

SEC. 223. Costs may be allowed, or, if not so allowed, may be so apportioned between the parties on the same or adverse sides, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 224. Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, the provisions of title two of this Act are applicable to and constitute the rules of practice of the proceedings mentioned in this Act.

In commemoration of this signal act of heroism it is hereby enacted that the Secretary of the Treasury be authorized and directed to cause to be prepared and to present to First Lieutenant Frank H. Newcomb, Revenue-Cutter Service, a gold medal, and to each of his officers a silver medal, and to each member of his crew a bronze medal.

CHAP. 12.—An Act For relief of occupants of lands included in the Algodones grant, in Arizona.

January 14, 1901.

Whereas the title to the lands in that section of the country in the county of Yuma and the Territory of Arizona, and included within the boundaries of the old Mexican land grant known as the Algodones grant, was tried by the United States Court of Private Land Claims, created for the settlement of titles to such grants, in the years eighteen hundred and ninety-five and eighteen hundred and ninety-six; and

Whereas in the hearing of said contest before said court the alleged grantees under said grant were successful and their title thereto by said trial court confirmed, and immediately thereafter the said alleged grantees, for large and valuable considerations, sold to numbers of people, citizens and bona fide settlers on said lands, in tracts of less than forty acres to each, and said settlers, then believing that they had a bona fide title to said lands sold, made lasting and valuable improvements and permanent homes thereon; and

Whereas the Government of the United States appealed said cause from the decision of said court below, and on said appeal the said decision of the said court below was reversed, and the title to said grant in said alleged grantees adjudged to be void, and that the said lands included within the boundaries of said grant, and sold as aforesaid, belonged to the United States; and if said settlers, citizens, and occupants of said lands who so purchased the same as aforesaid be not permitted to retain the same, and pay the Government therefor, they will be deprived of their homes, at ruinous consequences to them: Therefore,

Settlers on, who purchased from grant claimants may retain and repurchase land, etc.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That where such persons in good faith and for valuable considerations purchased from the grant claimants prior to May twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, portions of the land covered by the said grant, and have occupied and improved the same, such persons may, within six months from and after the passage of this Act, or within three months after the said lands shall be restored to entry, purchase the same at the price of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, upon making proof of the facts required by this Act under regulations to be provided by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and approved by the Secretary of the Interior, joint entries being admissible where two or more persons have purchased lands on the same forty-acre tract: Provided, That no one person shall purchase more than forty acres, and no purchase shall be allowed for a less quantity than that contained in the smallest legal subdivision.

Iowa southern judicial district.

Terms of court at Creston changed. Ante, p. 249.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section one of an Act entitled "An Act to create the southern division of the southern district of Iowa for judicial purposes, and to fix the time and place for holding court therein," approved June first, nineteen hundred, be amended by striking out the words "on the third Monday of May and the fourth Monday of September of each year" and inserting in lieu thereof the following words, to wit: "on the fourth Tuesday in March and the third Tuesday in October of each year."

CHAP. 75.—An Act To provide for the establishment of the intersection of the true one hundredth meridian with Red River, to ascertain the amount of taxes collected by the State of Texas in what was formerly known as Greer County and the expenditures made on account of said county by said State, and for other purposes. January 15, 1901.

Whereas there was a controversy of long standing between the United States and the State of Texas as to the ownership of the territory formerly known as Greer County, Texas, which was finally determined in favor of the United States by decree of the Supreme Court of the United States, March sixteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, in a suit in equity brought by the United States against the State of Texas in that court; and Greer County, Tex.

Preamble.

Whereas the treaty between the United States and Spain which was ratified February nineteenth, eighteen hundred and twenty-one, fixed the boundary between the United States and Spain, and this became the boundary between the United States and the Republic of Texas and the State of Texas, successively; and

Whereas it was provided by said treaty that the boundary line "west of the Mississippi shall begin on the Gulf of Mexico, at the mouth of the river Sabine, in the sea, continuing north along the western bank of that river to the thirty-second degree of latitude; thence by a line due north to the degree of latitude where it strikes the Rio Roxo of Natchitoches, or Red River; then following the course of the Rio Roxo westward to the degree of longitude one hundred west from London and twenty-three from Washington; then crossing the said Red River and running thence by a line due north to the river Arkansas, and so forth;" and

Whereas the Supreme Court of the United States in said cause adjudged that the words of said treaty "then following the course of the Rio Roxo westward to the degree of longitude one hundred west from London and twenty-three from Washington; then crossing the said Red River," referred to the true one hundredth meridian astronomically located; and

Whereas the true intersection of said one hundredth meridian with Red River, or what, prior to said decision, was known sometime as the South Fork of Red River, or Prairie Dog Town Fork, has never been fixed by the United States and the State of Texas, acting together and in the manner provided by said treaty, nor was said true intersection fixed by the decree in said cause; and

Whereas the said territory formerly known as Greer County was formed into a county in eighteen hundred and sixty, and duly organized as a county in eighteen hundred and eighty-six, under the laws of the State of Texas, and continued as such organized county until the decree aforesaid, with all the rights, duties, powers, and privileges of an organized county of said State; and

Whereas during the period of time the State of Texas claimed ownership of and exercised jurisdiction over said territory the said State of Texas patented lands situated in other parts of the State to said Greer County, as one of the counties within the jurisdiction thereof, for school purposes, and which lands said Greer County used and alienated and appropriated the proceeds thereof exclusively for school purposes within its limits; and

Whereas during the period of time the State of Texas claimed ownership of and exercised jurisdiction over said territory the said State of Texas collected taxes from inhabitants of said territory and upon lands and other property situated therein, and expended money for school purposes, the enforcement of law and order, the care of the deaf, dumb, blind, and insane, and generally for the protection of life, liberty, and property therein and the establishment and maintenance of a government for the inhabitants thereof; and

Whereas the Supreme Court of the United States, in the opinion in said cause, entitled The United States against The State of Texas (162 U. S., 1, 89-90), said: "It is further said that the State, since it assumed to create Greer County, has expended a large amount of money in providing a public-school system for the inhabitants of that locality. To what extent moneys have been so expended is not clearly shown. Whatever may be the facts touching this point, we do not feel at liberty to give weight to them in this case. The question before us, we repeat, is one of law, and must be determined according to law. What may be fairly and justly demanded by the State on account of moneys expended for the benefit of the inhabitants of the disputed territory is a matter for the consideration of the legislative branch of the National Government.

"In the argument it was suggested that this court ought not to forget how much was added to the power and wealth of this Nation when Texas, with its imperial domain, came into the Union and her people became a part of the political community for whom the Constitution of the United States was ordained and established. This fact can not, of course, be forgotten by any American who takes pride in the prestige and greatness of the Republic. But the considerations which it suggests can not affect the decision of legal questions, and must be addressed to another branch of the Government. The supposition is not to be indulged that that department of the Government will fail to recognize any duty imposed upon it by the circumstances arising out of this vexed controversy." Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause to be established and fixed the intersection of the true one hundredth meridian with Red River, or what, prior to said decision, was known sometime as the South Fork of Red River, or Prairie Dog Town Fork, by the most accurate and scientific methods, and at said intersection cause a suitable monument to be erected on the ground.

Establishment of intersection of true one hundredth meridian with Red River, etc., authorized.

He may also receive and consider any testimony taken by either party in said cause entitled The United States against The State of Texas, in the Supreme Court of the United States, reported in One hundred and sixty-second United States, page one, and may receive and consider any testimony which he may consider to be pertinent to the subject of such inquiry.

SEC. 5. That the approaches to the bridge built under this Act shall be so designed and constructed as not to interfere with the free dis-

If, by reason of the location of a bridge in or near a city harbor, or from any other cause, the channel span next the shore shall appear or become difficult of access at any season, because of the proximity of the river craft which are or may be moored at the bank, or from any other cause, then the person, company, or corporation owning, controlling, or operating said bridge shall either increase the width of the opening or span sufficiently, or shall, by purchase or otherwise, extinguish the right to obstruct the entrance to said span for a distance of from five hundred to one thousand feet above and below the bridge, as may appear necessary to the Secretary of War.

General allotment of lands.

GENERAL ALLOTMENT OF LANDS.

Appraisal.

2. All lands belonging to the Cherokee tribe of Indians in Indian Territory, except as herein reserved, shall be appraised at their true value, considering location and fertility of soil in each case, excluding improvements placed by allottee on the lands selected by him: Provided, however, That in cases where a citizen holding lands in excess of his rightful share has failed to sell or remove the buildings and fences from said excessive holding on or before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and one, the value of the buildings and fences shall be added to the value of the land by the appraisement committee.

Proviso.
Failure to remove buildings from excessive holdings.

By whom appraisal made.

3. The appraisement shall be made under the direction of the Dawes Commission by such number of committees of appraisement as may be deemed sufficient to expedite the work; one member of each committee to be appointed by said commission and one by the principal chief; and if the members of any committee fail to agree as to the value of any tract of land, the value thereof shall be determined by said commission.

The committees shall make report of their work to the commission as may be required. The commission shall prepare reports of the same in duplicate, and transmit them to the Secretary of the Interior for his approval, and when approved one copy shall be furnished the principal chief and one copy returned to the office of the commission for its use in making allotments as herein provided.

4. All lands of said tribe, except as herein provided, shall be allotted by said commission among the citizens of the tribe entitled to share therein, so as to give to each an equal share of the whole, in value, as nearly as may be, in manner following: There shall be allotted to each citizen eighty acres of land (boundaries to conform to the Government survey as nearly as may be) which may be selected by him, so as to include improvements which belong to him. Eighty acres of land, valued at six dollars and fifty cents per acre, shall constitute a standard allotment, and shall be the measure for the equalization of values; and any allottee selecting lands of less value than such standard may select other lands, not lawfully held or occupied by any other citizen, which, at their appraised value, will make his allotment equal in value to the standard so fixed.

5. If any citizen select eighty acres of land the appraised value of which, for any reason, is in excess of such standard, the excess of value shall be charged against him in the future distribution of lands and funds of the tribe arising from any source whatsoever, unless he has already paid the same, and he shall not be entitled to any further distribution of property or funds until all other citizens shall have received lands and funds equal in value to his allotment; and if there be not sufficient property and funds of the tribe to make the allotments of all other citizens equal in value to his, then for the excess there shall exist a lien on the rents and profits of his allotment; and no deed shall issue to such allottee until all charges against an allotment are liquidated. All controversies arising between citizens as to their right to select particular tracts of land shall be determined by said commission according to law.

6. Any citizen having in his possession lands in actual cultivation in excess of eighty acres for himself and eighty acres for his wife and each of his minor children, shall, on or before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and one, select therefrom allotments of eighty acres each for himself and the members of his family aforesaid, which said allotments he may hold, and no more; and he shall, within said time, make report in writing to the Dawes Commission of the lands so selected by him, giving legal description thereof; and if he have lawful improvements upon such excess he may dispose of the same to any other citizen, who may thereupon select lands so as to include such improvements; but, after the expiration of said time, any citizen may take any lands not already selected by another; but if lands so taken be in actual cultivation, having thereon improvements belonging to another citizen, such improvements shall be valued by the appraisement committee and the amount paid to the owner thereof by the allottee, and the same shall be a lien upon the rents and profits of the land until paid: Provided, That the owner of improvements may remove the same if he desires.

7. When allotments as hereinbefore provided have been made to all citizens the residue of lands, not herein reserved or otherwise disposed of, shall be so apportioned among such citizens as to equalize their allotments, but if the same be insufficient therefor the deficiency shall be supplied out of any funds of the tribe, so that the allotments of all

11. Before receiving his deed therefor each citizen shall select from his allotment forty acres of land, and if he fail to select the same it shall be selected by the Dawes Commission, and a proper designation thereof shall be made in the deed to the allottee. Said forty acres shall not be alienable at any time before the expiration of twenty-five years from the ratification of this agreement, except with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, and during the time the same remains so inalienable shall not be subject to any tax or be incumbered, taken, or sold to secure or satisfy any debt or obligation of the allottee contracted or incurred while the land remains so inalienable.

12. No taxes assessed or levied against the lands of any minor, not herein made nontaxable, shall be a lien upon such lands, but the same shall be a lien upon the products of the lands composing his allotment.

Allotments to Delawares who are Cherokee citizens, according to suit pending in Court of Claims, etc.

14. All Delaware Indians who are Cherokee citizens shall take lands and share in the funds of the tribe as their rights may be determined by the judgment of the Court of Claims, or by the Supreme Court, if appealed, in the suit instituted therein by the Delawares against the Cherokee Nation, and now pending; but if said suit be not determined before said commission is ready to begin the allotment of lands of the tribe as herein provided, the commission shall cause to be segregated one hundred and fifty-seven thousand six hundred acres of land, including lands which have been selected and occupied by Delawares in conformity to provisions of their agreement with the Cherokees dated April eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, such lands so to remain subject to disposition according to such judgment as may be rendered in said cause; and said commission shall, thereupon, proceed to the allotment of the remaining lands of the tribe as aforesaid. Said commission shall, when final judgment is rendered, allot lands to such Delawares in conformity to the terms of the judgment and their individual rights thereunder.

Nothing in this agreement shall in any manner impair the rights of either party to said contract as the same may be finally determined by the court, or shall interfere with the holdings of the Delawares under their contract with the Cherokees of April eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, until their rights under said contract are determined by the courts in their suit now pending against the Cherokees.

Existing rights unimpaired.
